

About the Child Care Quality System (CCQS)

Child care programs participating in CCQS may earn a certified quality rating by implementing practices related to positive outcomes for children verified under the direction of our office (Office of Child Care - OCC). This process includes verification of the caregivers' and directors' education and professional development, the program's family engagement efforts and other evidence-based best practices.

Certified Quality Rating Guide

Foundation of Quality is determined by the Utah Department of Health and Human Services, Child Care Licensing Program, and our office (OCC) by recognizing a program is meeting required licensing standards and the program's staff participated in trainings related to creating quality environments for children. These standards ensure that the children are healthy and safe. All licensed center programs maintaining a license in good standing and receiving a baseline quality score are eligible to receive the "Foundation of Quality" rating.

Building Quality is issued to programs that are implementing practices leading to high quality, including participation in quality environment training, incorporating family engagement programming and providing professional development to staff.

High Quality programs create an environment that not only focuses on the health and safety of the children in the program but also incorporates practices shown to support good outcomes for children, including positive interactions and trusting relationships between educators and children, and ongoing professional development and coaching of staff.

High Quality Plus programs build on the components of quality established at the High Quality rating but continually go beyond required standards such as developing strong partnerships with families to support children's development, greater emphasis on early literacy skills and providing opportunities for educators to obtain greater levels of training and education.

Additional Statuses

Default Foundation of Quality is assigned to eligible licensed programs that serve children whose care is covered by a Utah child care subsidy payment and meet licensing safety requirements but do not apply for a quality rating or meet the minimum requirements for a certified quality rating. Beginning June 1, 2021, licensed family child care programs will also be assigned a "Default Foundation of Quality" rating.

Not Participating is a status given to programs that do not want or are not eligible to participate in CCQS. Eligible licensed programs who do not serve or intend to serve children whose care is covered by a Utah child care subsidy are given a "Not Participating" status.

Denied Participation is a status assigned to programs that have a sanctioned license from the Utah Department of Health and Human Services, Child Care Licensing Program. A sanctioned license means that the program is at risk of losing their child care license because compliance with licensing rules has not been maintained.
