Declaration

Whereas, many young children in Utah spend a large part of their day in the care of dedicated, professional childcare providers and early childhood teachers, who strive to nurture them by providing emotional support, quality care, and education;

Whereas, childcare providers are important contributors to our economy, allowing many Utahns to participate in the workforce, pursue other activities, and support their families; and,

Whereas, making high-quality early childcare services available at a reasonable cost to all children and families who need them represents a worthy commitment to our future, and we encourage all Utahans to recognize and express appreciation to Utah's childcare professionals and early childhood educators for their commitment to the happiness and success of our children and families;

Now, therefore, I, Gary R. Herbert, governor of the great State of Utah, do hereby declare June 11, 2020, as

Utah Childcare Provider Appreciation Day
